

There are many different kinds of heroes. Governors keep us organized. Doctors heal us when we are sick. The U.S. troops protect us from other countries that might attack us. Each of these heroes does what is right in their heart. They do helpful things even when they are not asked. Heroes can come from anywhere from the countryside or the city.

In Charlotte's Web the heroes are Fern and Charlotte. Fern saved Wilbur's life from the beginning by stopping her father from killing Wilbur with an ax. She convinced her father that it was not the right thing to do. She mothered Wilbur and raised him to be a great pig. Charlotte is a hero because, when Wilbur was blue (about dieing) she lifted his spirit by promising he would live. She also put most of her effort into weaving words into her web up until the end of her life in order to make him seem special. In the process she made him famous. Once he was famous the Zuckermans wouldn't kill him. These two heroes were both did what was right in their heart without being asked. Heroes can turn up from anywhere in books or real life. -JF
